Item No

6Outline

The world of work will look different in 10 years' time. Technology, an ageing population, automation and artificial intelligence, the ongoing impact of globalisation and climate change, and trends such as the gig economy are changing work as we know it.

The Working in Hackney Scrutiny Commission hosted an event on 29th November 2017 to explore the 'Future World of Work and Skills' with key note speakers. The Commission, stakeholders and members of the public heard from:

- Daniel Tomlinson from the Resolution Foundation
- Cameron Tait from the Fabian Society
- Bill Davies from Central London Forward
- Joe Dromey from the Institute for Public Policy Research.

This information formed the basis of the scrutiny commission's review looking at the future world of work and skills in the next 5-10 years.

At this event the Commission explored the trends of the changing labour market and changing skills system for London and discussed how this will impact local economies in London. The discussion covered:

- Future of London's economy and the business environment in the next 5-10 years
- Nature of employment and work
- Skills devolution and the adult skills system
- Increasing polarisation and inequalities in employment (economic and social).
